

Dr Olusegun Kehinde (a.k.a Kenny) is a Board member of Future Voices Inc. and Shepparton Nelson Mandela Learning Centre Project. He is an African migrant from South-West Nigeria and a Medical Practitioner. He and his family live and work in the regional town of Shepparton.

He moved to Australia in 2008 and adjusting to life in Australia was a bit challenging with all the usual problems with navigating through medical registration, settling down in a country as diverse as Australia and the journey of transiting from a temporary resident to a permanent resident and eventually a citizen.

It has been rewarding, and he does not regret moving to Australia. Apart from medical practice, Kenny loves to work with children, reading and writing stories, gardening, and travelling. He is an active member of a local church and a man of faith who hopes for the best and looks forward to more community engagement in programs that benefits the vulnerable and in mentoring youths from all backgrounds.

He believes strongly that it is more blessed to give than to receive and that a man's actual CV is not the number of degrees or wealth he has but the positive contributions he can make and the lives he can touch within his sphere of influence.
